DPA-initiated Department General Order (DGO) Limiting Questioning and Searching Individuals on Probation, Parole, and Other Forms of Supervised Release

Inquiring About Probation or Parole

Police officers are precluded from asking whether a member of the public is on probation or parole unless:

- The person is detained for a misdemeanor or felony; or
- Is an immediate threat to officer or public safety.

Probation or Parole “plus” Required

A person on probation or parole for a non-violent offense, subject to a warrantless search condition, may be searched according to the terms of their supervised release only if one of the below conditions are met:

- A nexus to new criminal activity exists; or
- An immediate threat to officer or public safety exists.

Verification

- Officers shall verify through official channels that a person is currently on probation or parole and is subject to search condition, before a search occurs. The verification must occur within 72 hours before the search and must be documented.

Warrantless Search of Cellular Telephones

- A general search condition does not permit the warrantless search of cellular telephones.

DPA Recommended that Plainclothes Officers Be Required to Wear Body Worn Cameras When Taking Enforcement Actions

- SFPD should make a distinction in DGO 5.08 between non-uniformed officers who are undercover versus those who are merely plainclothes; and,

- Plainclothes officers should be required to carry their Body Worn Cameras in their vehicles and mount them on their person once the plainclothes officers decide to take an enforcement action listed in DGO 10.11.02(c), the “Authorized Use” section of DGO 10.11.02(c), SFPD’s Body Worn Camera policy.
