Mike Stone

CROP's History

- 2008 - Founded by a father and son who believed that incarceration should not determine people's ability to make a positive impact in the world
- 2010 - Under CROP's sponsorship, a team of incarcerated leaders created an Alcohol & Other Drug Certification program
- 2014 - Successfully helped certify 33 people serving life-terms as counselors who helped transform the culture of CTF Soledad
- 2020 - After establishing a scholarship that warranted national news coverage and serving over 1,000 people, the founders of CROP were released from prison and turned their focus to reentry
- 2021 - Awarded a grant for $28.5 million from the State of California to launch a three-year pilot program called Ready 4 Life

CROP's Theory of Change

CROP is dedicated to reforming California's criminal justice landscape through holistic approaches to reentry that reduce recidivism among people returning from California state prisons. CROP envisions a society that invests in people over punishment and seeks to contribute to this vision, through our mission of reimagining reentry through a holistic, human centered approach to advocacy, housing, and skill development for future work.

We aim to test the hypothesis that: If justice-involved people are successfully prepared and placed in technology and knowledge-based jobs for the Future of Work, then, people with conviction records will be valued catalysts for increased economic prosperity and community healing.
