Jamari's Journey
© 2022

Jamari's Journey is a temporary mural by Nancy Cato installed along the construction safety fence adjacent to the Southeast Treatment Plant New Headworks Facility Project site.

Using humor, wit, and compassion, Nancy Cato's pen and ink illustrations reflect the Black experience and engage everyday people in serious social conversations. Cato's panelized narrative mural tells the story of Jamari, a young child who is frustrated with the oppressive forces around him—pollution, violence, gentrification, and displacement. To escape these injustices, Jamari creates a portal to the Universe, where he can breathe and find serenity. When called home by his mother, Jamari, who now embodies the Universe, brings this new-found inner peace with him.

The Southeast Treatment Plant (SEP) is San Francisco's largest wastewater facility, treating nearly 80% of the City's wastewater flow. Through the San Francisco Public Utilities Commission's Sewer System Improvement Program (SSIP), the SEP is undergoing a $3 billion investment to improve the plant's reliability, replace aging infrastructure, reduce odors, and increase seismic resilience. When complete, the plant will look better, smell better, and work better. A series of temporary murals reflecting and celebrating the vibrancy of Bayview-Hunters Point, its people, values, and history will be installed on the SEP construction safety fence beginning Summer 2020 through Summer 2024. Artists for this temporary public art program are selected from the Bayview Artist Registry.
